How do you handle any issues with delayed or lost ingredient shipments?

If you experience any issues with delayed or lost ingredient shipments, we understand the frustration and inconvenience it can cause. Here are the steps we recommend taking to handle such situations:

1. Contact the supplier: Reach out to the supplier immediately to inform them about the delayed or lost shipment. Provide them with all the necessary details such as the order number, tracking information, and any other relevant information. They will be able to investigate the issue and provide you with updates on the status of your shipment.
2. Document the issue: Keep a record of all communication with the supplier regarding the delayed or lost shipment. This will be helpful for any future reference or if you need to escalate the issue further.
3. Review the terms and conditions: Check the terms and conditions of your agreement with the supplier to understand their policies regarding delayed or lost shipments. This will help you determine if you are eligible for any compensation or if there are any specific steps you need to follow.
4. Explore alternative options: While waiting for the delayed shipment to arrive or for the issue to be resolved, consider exploring alternative suppliers or ingredients to ensure that your production or business operations are not significantly impacted. This can help mitigate any potential delays or disruptions.
5. Escalate the issue if necessary: If the supplier is unable to resolve the issue or if you are not satisfied with their response, you may need to escalate the matter. Contact our customer support team at +31 85 0027748 or email us at sales-eu@12taste.com for further assistance and guidance. We will do our best to help you resolve the issue and find a suitable solution.

Please remember that each situation may vary, and it's important to communicate directly with the supplier and follow their specific instructions and procedures.

Do you offer any resources or support for regulatory compliance related to ingredient labeling?

Yes, we offer resources and support for regulatory compliance related to ingredient labeling. We understand the importance of adhering to regulations and ensuring accurate and compliant ingredient labeling for your products. Here are some ways we can assist you:

1. Ingredient List Creation: We can help you create ingredient lists that include Quantitative Ingredient Declarations (QUID), allergen listing, and traffic light labeling. Our team will ensure that your ingredient lists meet regulatory requirements and provide accurate information to consumers.
2. Nutritional Labeling: We can assist you with nutritional labeling, including the calculation of nutritional values and the inclusion of mandatory information such as energy, fat, carbohydrates, protein, and more. Our experts will ensure that your nutritional labels comply with relevant regulations.
3. Regulatory Check: We can perform a regulatory check to ensure that your labels comply with current legislation pertaining to UK/EU standards. Our team will review your labels for any potential non-compliance issues and provide guidance on necessary adjustments.
4. Artwork Checks: We can conduct artwork checks to verify that your labels meet regulatory requirements in terms of font size, placement of information, and other labeling elements. This helps ensure that your labels are compliant and convey the necessary information to consumers.
5. Consultation: We offer introductory consultations where you can discuss your specific regulatory compliance needs and receive guidance tailored to your business. Our experts can provide insights and recommendations to help you navigate the complex landscape of ingredient labeling regulations.

Please note that regulatory requirements may vary depending on the country or region where your products are sold. It's important to consult with our team to ensure compliance with the specific regulations applicable to your target market.

Can I request information on the manufacturing processes or facilities of ingredient suppliers?

Yes, you can request information on the manufacturing processes or facilities of ingredient suppliers. Understanding the manufacturing processes and facilities of suppliers is crucial for ensuring the quality and safety of the ingredients you source. Here's how you can request this information:

1. Contact the supplier: Reach out to the ingredient supplier directly and inquire about their manufacturing processes and facilities. You can ask for details such as their production methods, quality control measures, certifications, and any other relevant information that you need to assess their suitability as a supplier.
2. Request documentation: Ask the supplier to provide documentation or certifications that demonstrate their adherence to industry standards and regulations. This may include certifications like Good Manufacturing Practices (GMP), Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Points (HACCP), or other relevant certifications specific to their industry.
3. Site visits: If feasible, you can request to visit the supplier's manufacturing facilities to get a firsthand look at their operations. This can provide valuable insights into their processes, equipment, and overall quality control measures.
4. Third-party audits: Inquire if the supplier undergoes regular third-party audits to ensure compliance with industry standards. These audits can provide an independent assessment of their manufacturing processes and facilities.
5. Supplier evaluation: Conduct a thorough evaluation of the supplier based on the information they provide. Assess their capabilities, quality control measures, and any other factors that are important to your specific requirements.

It's important to note that the level of information and transparency provided by suppliers may vary. Some suppliers may have readily available documentation and be open to site visits, while others may have limitations on sharing certain details. It's essential to communicate your specific needs and expectations to the supplier to ensure you receive the necessary information.

Are there any restrictions on the sale of certain ingredients based on geographical regions or regulations?

Yes, there can be restrictions on the sale of certain ingredients based on geographical regions or regulations. Different countries or regions may have specific regulations or requirements regarding the use and sale of certain ingredients. These regulations can vary in terms of permitted usage levels, labeling requirements, safety standards, and more.

To ensure compliance with these regulations, it is important to thoroughly research and understand the specific requirements of the target market where you intend to sell your products. This may involve consulting with regulatory authorities, conducting ingredient assessments, and obtaining necessary certifications or approvals.

Additionally, some ingredients may be subject to international agreements or conventions that restrict their sale or use. For example, certain endangered plant species or animal products may be protected under the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES), which regulates their trade and sale.

It is crucial to stay updated on the latest regulations and requirements in the regions where you operate or intend to sell your products. This will help ensure that you comply with all applicable laws and regulations related to the sale of ingredients.

Please note that the specific restrictions and regulations can vary widely depending on the ingredient and the target market. It is recommended to consult with regulatory experts or legal professionals to ensure full compliance with all relevant regulations.

How do you handle any issues with ingredient supply chain disruptions or shortages?

We understand that ingredient supply chain disruptions or shortages can have a significant impact on your business. Here's how we handle such issues:

- 1. Proactive monitoring: We closely monitor the supply chain to identify any potential disruptions or shortages. By staying informed about market trends, global events, and industry developments, we can anticipate and mitigate potential issues.
- 2. Diversified supplier network: We maintain a diversified network of suppliers to minimize the risk of disruptions. Having multiple suppliers allows us to quickly pivot and source ingredients from alternative channels if one supplier experiences difficulties.
- 3. Communication and collaboration: We maintain open lines of communication with our suppliers to stay updated on their production capabilities, potential challenges, and any changes in their supply chain. This enables us to proactively address any issues and work together to find solutions.
- 4. Inventory management: We carefully manage our inventory levels to ensure we have adequate stock of essential ingredients. By forecasting demand and maintaining appropriate inventory levels, we can mitigate the impact of supply chain disruptions or shortages.
- 5. Alternative sourcing: In the event of a supply chain disruption or shortage, we actively explore alternative sourcing options. This may involve identifying new suppliers, exploring different regions for ingredient procurement, or considering alternative ingredients that can serve as substitutes.
- 6. Transparent communication with customers: If there are any disruptions or shortages that may impact our customers, we communicate transparently and promptly. We provide updates on the situation, discuss potential alternatives or solutions, and work closely with our customers to minimize any potential disruptions to their operations.

Please note that while we take proactive measures to manage supply chain disruptions or shortages, unforeseen circumstances can still arise. In such cases, we work diligently to find the best possible solutions and minimize any impact on our customers.

Do you offer any resources or support for ingredient sourcing from local or small-scale producers?

Yes, we do offer resources and support for ingredient sourcing from local or small-scale producers. We believe that local-for-local supply chains offer a lot of opportunities. Suppliers are setting up local distribution and supply chains to reduce costs and promote sustainability. We also support smallholder farmers and SMEs to get fair pay or premiums for their produce, improve product quality and cut production costs. By implementing regenerative agricultural practices, they become more resilient against climate change and other shocks. the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are aged 65 and over has increased from 10.5 million to 13.5 million, and the number of people aged 75 and over has increased from 4.5 million to 6.5 million (Office for National Statistics 2002).

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the needs of older people, and the UK Government has set out a strategy for older people in the 2002 White Paper, Our Common Future (Department of Health 2002). The White Paper sets out a number of key objectives for the health care system, including the need to improve the health and well-being of older people, and to ensure that they have access to the services they need.

The White Paper also sets out a number of key principles for the health care system, including the need to be patient-centred, to be fair and equitable, and to be efficient and effective. These principles are intended to guide the development of the health care system in the future.

The White Paper also sets out a number of key actions for the health care system, including the need to improve the health and well-being of older people, and to ensure that they have access to the services they need. These actions are intended to be implemented over the next few years.
